PARKEVILLE HYDROPATHIC INSTITUTE. PARKEVILLE HYDROPATHIC INSTITUTE.

A T a meeting of the Board of Managers of the Parkeville Hydropathic Institute, held fifth month 15th, 1850, Joseph A. Weder, M. D., was unanimously elected Resident Physician in the place of Dr. Dexter, resigned.
Having made various improvements, this institute is now prepared to receive an additional number of patients; and from Dr. Weder's well-known skill and practical experience in Europe, (acquired under Vincenz, Preissnitz, the founder of the Hydropathic system.) and for several years past in this country, and particularly in the city of Philadelphia, (where he has had many patients,) the Managers believe the afflicted will find him an able and an agers selected and attentive physician.

The domestic department being under the charge of a Steward and Matron, will enable the Doctor to devote to the patients whatever time may be necessary.

Application for admission to be made to SAMUEL WEBB, Secretary.

General Description of the Parkeville Hydropathic Institute.

The main building is three stories high, standing back from the street about one hundred feet, with a semicircular grass plot in front, and contains thirty to forty rooms. The grounds around the house are tastefully laid out with walks and planted with trees, shrubs, &c. On the left of the entrance to these grounds is a cottage containing four rooms, used by male patients as a bathing house, with every convenience for "packing," bathing, &c.; on the right of the entrance, about two hundred feet distant, stands a similar cottage, used by the ladies for similar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hun stands a similar cottage, used by the lastes of salmar purposes.

In the rear of the Institute, at the distance of one hundred feet, are three other cottages, some eighty feet apart. One of these is the laundry, with a hydrant at the door; the other two are occupied by the servants.

The hydrant water is introduced into these cottages as well as into the main building, and all the waste water carried off by drains under ground.

THE WATER WORKS

Consist of a circular stone building, standing on the brow of a hill, surmounted by a large cedar reservoir containing five hundred barrels, brought from a never-failing spring of pure cold water in the side of the hill, by "a hydraulic ram," a self-acting machine of cast iron, that is kept constantly going, night and day, by the descent of the water from the spring. The surplus water is carried from the reservoir to a fountain in the water-works yard, surrounded by weeping willows. In the first story of the waterworks is a circular room, containing the douche bath, which is a stream falling from a height of about thirty feet, and can be varied in size from half an inch to an inch and a half in diameter. Adjoining the douche room is a dreading room, with marble tables, &c.; the rising douche (for the cure of piles, &c.) is one of the most complete contrivances of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

There are many other appliances, which can be better understood by a personal examination.

The distribution of the business of the kind, being entirely under the control of the patient using the same.

price, $2 50 per volume. Orders respectfully solicited.

SEARS' PICTORIAL FAMILY PUBLICATIONS are decidedly the best books that agents can possibly employ their time in supplying to the people of the United States. They are valuable for reference, and should be possessed by every family in this great republic. There is not a city or town in these United States, not even those of small importance, but contains many citizens to whom these works are indispensable. They are adapted to the literary wants of the Christian, the patriot, the statesman, and the domestic circle, got up in a superior style of art and workmanship; and are not only such books as will sell, but are such as an agent of good principle will feel free to recommend, and willing to see the purchaser again after they have been bought.

Our Plan.—The plan the publisher has so successfully carried out for several years, is the obtaining responsible news as agents, who are well known in their own counties, owns, and villages, and have time and disposition to circulate good and instructive books among their neighbors and friends. Any person wishing to embark in the enterprise will risk little in sending $25 or $50, for which he will receive an assortment as he may direct, at the whole sale cash prices.

Enterprising and active men of respectability and good address, would do well to engage in the sale of the above volumes; and all postmasters, clergymen, book pediars, and newspaper agents, are respectfully requested to act as our agents. A handsome remuneration allowed to all who engage in their sale. For particulars address, post paid,

The Baltimore and Philadelphia Steamboat Company (ERICSSON LINE)

(ERICSSON LINE)

Have resumed their operations for the year with increased means of accommodating the trade between Philadelphia and Baltimore, in the most regular and expeditious manner, and at their former materially reduced prices, being, on dry goods, hardware, &c., only 10 cents per 100 pounds, and but half the price charged by other lines.

Persons wishing to avail themselves of the facilities and moderate prices of the Line, are advised to give explicit and positive directions for sending their goods to the Ericsson Line, and they should be particular to possess themselves of the receipts which are invariably given for their goods. In those are stated the price charged for transportation; and it will prove a protection against the double rates exacted by other lines, who have no published rates.

Goods destined for the West, South, or other places beyond Baltimore, forwarded promptly on the day of their arrival, with every care and attention, free of all charge whatever for this service, in the shape of commissions or otherwise.

New York—Goods shipped from New York, or other whatever for this service, in the shape of commissions or otherwise.

New York.—Goods shipped from New York, or other places eastward of that city, should be distinctly consigned to A. Groves, jr., Philadelphia, to insure their conveyance by this Line.

Freight to or from Baltimore, as above, 10 cents per 100 pounds. Coarse freights taken at still less rates.

The established character and known reputation of this company is an ample guarantee to those disposed to confide their property to the care of the company. One or more of the company's boats leaves Philadelphia from the upper side of Chestnut street wharf every day, (Sunday excepted, at 3 o'clock, arriving in Baltimore early next morning. IRISH EMIGRANT SOCIETY.

Office, No. 1 Reads Street, New York. Office, No. 1 Reade Street, New York.

In consequence of the great number of complaints which have for a long time been made by Emigrants, of frauds committed upon them in the sending of money to their friends in Ireland, and to aid and protect the Emigrant, the Irish Emigrant Society established a fund, deposited in the Bank of Ireland, upon which they draw drafts, payable at sight, at any of the branches of the Bank.

Persons residing out of the city, by enclosing in a letter the sum they wish forwarded, with the plainly written direction to whom and where it is to be paid, will have the same remitted.

There is a great advantage in purchasing the Society's drafts—that the Bank has a branch in each of the principal towns in Ireland, and thus the losses by discount, and otherwise, are avoided.

The Society keeps an office at No. 22 Spruce street, to which Emigrants can apply to obtain situations for which they are fitted.

Orders from employers in the country, stating the services required, the wages, and the cheapest modes of conveyance, and giving a respectable reference, will meet with prompt attention.

The Society will be thankful for all circumstantial and yeyance, and giving a response prompt attention.

The Society will be thankful for all circumstantial and early information of any fraud, imposition, or outrage committed on Emigrants, and will endeavor speedily to apply a remedy.

The superiority of this paint over all other, for carriage, house, and ship painting, will be seen in its rapid sale.
It is not over four months since this paint has been introduced into market, and our agent has been able to order one hundred tons. The paint is ground in oil, and put up ready for use, from the finest black down to any shade to suit the fancy.

Also, inventors and manufacturers of Tenners' Blacking. This article is so universally approbated by all who have used it, that it scarcely needs commendation. But to give confidence to those who may not have tried it, we would say that Z. C. Ityon, foreman to A. M. Taylor & Co., Columbia street, Cincinnath, has authorized us to use his name as a recommendation to tanners in general. To all who know Mr. Z. C. Ryon this would be sufficient; but all tanners in the city and country, who have used it, have granted us this privilege. If it were necessary we could fill a newspaper with testimonials; but where all who use are pleased we deem it uncalled for.

The Tanners' Blacking is put up in kegs containing six gallons, ready for use, and will be sent to any point on

PART 4TH.—Containing two excellent speeches, follo by a happy event—and "The End."

A certain Caliph, once, whose name, Arabians say, is known to fame, But which I find too long, to be Inserted in my history,

At night, would doff his robe of state, And in disguise perambulate His capital, the truth to hear, Which comes not oft to royal ear

Things otherwise forever sealed; And much he learned of evil done By men he showered his gifts upon IV. Right often, too, was he confused,

To hear his mighty self abused— Himself, the "gentle," "wise," and "brave," Pronounced a "tyrant," "fool," and "slave!" Now, this was not exactly true; The best that Caliph well could do He did: but Ministers were vile,

Good Lord! if Presidents should go About the streets, in night-time, so! The sage Arabians further say, The Caliph's custom was, next day, Perverting all his acts the while.

BY JOEL AUSTIN. CHAPTER V .- THE WITCH OF GOLDING GORGE "Annie, what say you of a visit to the famous Witch, in her kennel up there at the she thought I had consulted the fortune-teller at Golding Gorge, she would conceit I was bewitched by her, and refuse me the shelter of our roof forever after, through very fear. Indeed, though, I've the greatest curiosity to see her, and hear what she would say."

Ah! this "curiosity" is a dangerous thing with the female sex; and whatever a woman has curiosity to see or know, that she is bound to know in the end. Berry, therefore, did not find it very hard to persuade her to go; promising that he would satisfy her ma, and protesting that his object was to explode this humbug, and make the old beldam dissolve her pretended league with the devil. "I'll bet you a kiss, Annie," he said playfully, "she shall sup with us under the great sycamore tree, as certain as I shall see her and that, too, to old John's appropriate music on the bugle.' In a few minutes they reached the foot of the Gorge, and Annie remained timidly behind, while Berry knocked resolutely at the shut door, which he found after some difficulty. No reply came, and nothing indicated that the sound was heeded within. Clouds had been quietly gathering for some time, and the rain now began to descend in downright earnest. Annie's gala-dress was threatened with total destruction; and as for Berry, he felt far from easy concerning his Annie, his beaver, and his broadcloth. He redoubled his summons at the door; but the torrent roared so deafeningly without, and the claps of thunder were so loud and frequent—for the tempest was raging now its fury-that no other earthly sound seemed as though it might reach the inmate. "Shelter yourself as well as you can, dear Annie," screamed Edwin, in an interval of the storm, "and I'll try to beat down the door— I'll have to do it!" He gathered up a massive rock of slate-stone, as he spoke, and hurled it with surprising effort against the door; but it was barricaded within, and resisted the assault, not budging an inch, when the missile rebounded from it and fell heavily to the ground. He was preparing to repeat the attack, and another great rock was actually poised above his head for that purpose, when the door was suddenly opened from the inside about an inch. and a shrill, unnatural voice, distinct above all the elemental confusion, called out-want?

"Let us in, good woman, for the love of powers. Heaven!" replied Berry; "we are travellers from Moorfield Hamlet—a young lady and myself—and are drenched in this infernal rain! Admit us, and I will reward you well. You need not be afraid of us," he added—observing her evident reluctance to open the door any further-" you need not be afraid, we will not

"I ain't afeard!" replied the unearthly voice: let me see you first, fur its been a long time sence Dame Goldizon's trusted mankind, an' maybe you lie to me!"

At these words, a shrivelled, tawny counter-had sustained. Old John blew the bugle again, for supper—and more comically still; saying, matted locks of snow-white hair, togsed negli-that immediately after, they would set out to gently over the face, just allowing the shaggy white brows to appear, and the retreating, lustreless gray eyes, one of which was entirely

"Come in with you, then!" she sullenly exclaimed, "but mind ye, ye must pack off as soon as ye can venture out again!" As she spoke, she removed a heavy log-bedstead from behind the door, with an exertion of strength she did not seem could be, and the low door of she did not seem equal to; and the low door of the hut swung reluctantly on its sole rusty hinge, wide enough to permit Annie Bell and Edwin, now thoroughly soaked with rain, to enter without much difficulty. Nowithstand-ing their uncomfortable condition, they could not but gaze with intense curiosity upon the old drone who had thus grumblingly afforded them shelter; and was now continuing her hos-pitality by kindling a brush-fire on the narrow pitality by kindling a brush-fire on the narrow hearth; mumbling to herself, as she knelt there, whenever she ceased to blow the smoking fuel. She had not bid them sit, and seemed wholly to have forgotten their presence, were it not that her occupation, the preparation of a fire by which they might dry themselves, proved that she had not. They sat down unbidden upon the side of the old bedstead, without speaking; and while the roar of the Potomac through the Gorge without, and the recurring clash of the thunder and dashing of the rain, made them feel thankful for even such a shelter, they observed, with a feeling a little tinged with super-stition, the strange being known as the Witch of Golding Gorge. Marvellous stories had been whispered about her; of enchantments she had worked—destinies she had foretold—and even unnatural shapes she had assumed—and truly no wonder such a singular creature should have given rise to such fancies, among so simple-minded a peasantry as that of the Garden of

Her stature was diminutive; and her face and neck an entire succession of wrinkles. Whenever she spoke, it was apparently with the greatest pain—the muscles of her whole face and neck twitching convulsively, and with a voice strong, but completely beyond her con-trol, having a most unearthly tone. A hand-kerchief of faded blue cotton was tied carelessly around her head; under which, every now and then, she would tuck her coarse hair, white with the frosts of over five-score winters. Her long bony arms were bare, and her skinny fingers, frightful to look at, were armed like the wild-cat, with claws that almost appeared never to have been trimmed. Her loose garment of homespun cloth—for frock it could not be called—was huddled on in the most negligent manner; and its color was an excellent match for her sickly, yellow complexion. Altogether she was as strange a looking creature as one could be persuaded, in Christian charity, to call human. By the time the intruders had been enabled to observe thus much, the fire was blazing comfortably; and bidding them, by a sweep of her arm, to draw up to it, which they did, she mumbled as if to herself, but audibly—
"Why would ye come here, an' bid me tell it? I can't change it for you, or I would! Oh, ye are a comely couple, an' good is in your hearts; ye have never known trouble, but the worst is to come to you yet, I know"—she continued aloud, as she turned to them; while the only eye she had fired up with a light like in-spiration, and every nerve and vein in her neck and face writhed like a nest of slimy serpents: "I know what ye've come for, though ye havn't told me! Do ye fear now to hear what is written in the sealed book for ye, that ye do not ask your destiny? or do you think me a croaking wretch, that knows not what she says."

Listen then "—and here she solemnly lifted the control of the prison the usual crowd of men, women, and children were assembled, and those who witnessed the execution were gratified with more than a usual share of horror. The victim struggled for six mortal minutes, to had never known before. lowered her voice to its hoarsest tones, while the storm without grew suddenly hushed, and her words were distinct as the sobbing sound issuing from the smoking brushwood on the hearth. "You, Edwin Berry, and you, Annie Bell, beware of the ford of the Panther Bluff-for it lows with oblivion for one of ye, and rememprance for the other-with wo oriny tears for the other, till this day twelvemonth, when that one too shall forget. Now go; the storm is over, and I would pity you then none may see me!" Annie screamed faintly, and fell without moion upon the floor. While she lay there, her ong, sunny tresses showered like a flood of ight around her—her beautiful, inanimate face, air and cold as marble, turned upward-an expression of mingled intense terror and pain yet lingering around the mouth and brow-Edwin sprang from his chair, and advancing, as if with the impulse to strike the crone, cried

"Liar! imposter! miserable hag! shame upon you to play upon the gentle nerves of a timid girl thus; take back what you have said. Oh, take it back, I implore you!" he continued, changing from invective to expostulation. "Not for my sake, for I do not care myself; but let her hear you say that it is not so, and I will give you gold enough to quit these paltry tricks, and live in honesty the rest of your miserable days!"

The old crone's countenance was a hideous thing to look upon during this harangue—her toothless jaws twisted from side to side, and her remaining eye was red as blood from the excess of her passion.

"Aye!" she shricked; "Edwin Berry, you will know this night if I am an imposter, when you stretch your arms out to me as you do now, and as vainly. Begone! begone, I say! I would be alone."

She dashed the creaking door back on the rusty hinge, and the calm, sweet rays of the declining sun streamed into that miserable abode-only one of the dismal spots his missionary beams illumine. Annie soon recovered. and her first anxiety was to be beyond the "Stop! her features, much as she strove to master it, occasioned considerable alarm and conjecture to the rest of the party when she joined them, as they were just emerging from the chasm where they had sought shelter when the storm surprised them. She nor Edwin returned an answer to the volley of questions which assailed them; as, "Where had they been? What had happened?" and the like. One was possessed by fear and apprehension, the other by anxiety on account of the shock his gentle companion for supper—and more comically still; saying, that immediately after, they would set out to return; but this time Edwin did not smile, and Annie, poor Annie, shuddered, for both were thinking of the Witch of Golding Gorge. (End of chapter 5th.)

. 8,853,054 . 3,844,889 . 28,830 . 13,296 . 3,389,430 113,364,492 It will be seen, from the above tables, that the European despotisms, with two millions and and a half of square miles, have nearly one hundred and ten millions of population, while the American republics, with eight millions and a half of square miles, have only forty-two millions of people. Russia, which is the principal European despotism, has vast tracts in the frozen regions altogether uninhabitable. The lands of the American republics are mostly in the temperate zones, exceedingly productive, and favorable to the development of every element of national greatness. This fact is forcibly illustrated by the extraordinary rate of increase of our own republic, when compared with that of European despotisms and monarchies, some of which are almost stationary. This country is now progressing in the ratio of about three per cent. per annum compounded, which in 1875, twenty-four years hence, will give us a population of fifty millions; and at the close of the century, one hundred millions. If the French republic maintains itself, the population of Franch republic maintains itself, the p lation of European and American republics will then outnumber the despotisms one hundred per cent., and equal that of monarchies and despotisms united. We have not estimated the probability of accessions to our number by the withdrawal of European despotisms and monarchies from those portions of North America and the West Indies which have been permitted to remain in their hands. Nearly a million of square miles of available territory in the North, exclusive of inhospitable tracts in possession of the Aborigines, yet remain outside of our present boundaries, to come into the Union.

CAPITAL PUNISHMENT.-In the details of the execution of Stookely, in New York on Friday, 19th inst., may be seen the degrading and brutalizing effects of capital punishment. There were about five hundred persons present to wit-ness the great moral spectacle which a distin-guished clergyman of this country once charac-terized as "the rainbow of promise to the moral universe.

Listen, then!"—and here she solemnly lifted him an eternity of torture, writhing and tear-her left hand towards the sky, and pointed, with Gorge?"

Even the Spanish garote is far less barbarous than the English gallows; and sitting in a chair no more "ignoninious" than standing upon a scaffold. infamous life-snuffer, the French guillotine, does its work in a cleaner and more merciful manner than the rascally cord of the hangman. We are, therefore, decidedly in favor of abolishing the gallows, even if the "good of society" requires the infliction of capital punishment.—Providence Mirror.

He who despises useful employment tramples inder foot a fundamental law of his Creator. "In the sweat of thy brow shalt thou eat bread." was the first rule of action prescribed for man, after the fall-meaning that each member of the human family should perform an amount of useful labor, equal to that required to produce the means of his own subsistence. To secure obedience to this law, we are so constituted, physically and mentally, that a violation of it produces an amount of punishment more than commen-surate with the pleasure that can be derived from stubborn disobedience .- H. L. Harvey.
